Helping Pet Owners in Flood Areas

pg. 6

[FROM THE CEO]

Dear Friends,

This spring arrived with unforeseen tragedy, but ended in remarkable triumph. Record flooding in our communities gave way to heroic acts on behalf of humans and animals alike. Many lives were saved.

NHS received overwhelming support. People, like you, from all over the country, responded with bountiful donations for displaced animals and their owners - some even traveled from Utah, Kansas and Iowa to deliver pet food and supplies! This incredible generosity allowed us to provide temporary housing for 126 dogs, cats, horses and critters at NHS, and 20 animals in two off-site American Red Cross shelters.

NHS became a centralized donation locale, housing and distributing pet supplies in two semi-trailers, graciously donated by Werner Enterprises. Many volunteers and staff gave countless hours of their time, which included driving to affected areas to deliver donations.

The stories and pictures that flood victims shared were heartbreaking, yet in the face of despair, they were so thoughtful to say, “thank you,” having the peace of mind that their companion pets were safe, warm and dry.

On behalf of all of us at NHS, we are so grateful and inspired by your love for the animals which makes anything possible.

For the Animals,

Think of us on May 22!

Omaha Gives! is our local day of philanthropy, when you can support non-profits providing life changing services in our community.

On that day, we'll have a chance to make your dollars stretch further, through matching gifts and prizes, so dogs like Frodo will get the chance they so desperately deserve. Find out his story on May 23rd at www.omahagives.org.

Capital Renovation Project

We are excited to announce that our 19-year-old shelter is undergoing much needed improvements that will help us decrease stress on the animals and get them adopted more quickly!

Since opening the Lied Humane Center building in February of 2000, we've served more than 450,000 animals who required surgeries, shelter, grooming, training, rehabilitation and more to get back on their feet. In those 19 years many animals have "left their mark" on the building. Shelter research has also come a long way. To stay at the top in our field, we need to incorporate new sheltering techniques and best practices. The solution is a $14.1 million comprehensive renovation named to honor longtime CEO, Judy Varner. The Judy Varner Adoption and Education Center, will:

- renovate 37,107 square feet, which is 45% of our existing shelter;
- add 12,000 square feet of new animal living space;
- reduce stress and length of stay for all animals;
- transform the way the public views, accesses and interacts with adoptable animals.

What's new for cats:

Our cats will soon enjoy a new place to roam, scratch and perch. Taller condos will allow for instinctive vertical movement, lowering stress and providing a natural living environment. Immersive group rooms will change the way the public views cats, encouraging potential adopters to interact and spend quality time finding the perfect companion. Other shelters that have implemented such changes have experienced lower stress rates among cats, a 50% increase in adoption rates and a 60% reduction in the spread of diseases!

What's new for dogs:

Over the past 20 years our dog population has changed. We are now sheltering more dogs who are fearful, lack training and require behavior modification. Currently, these dogs are not easily accessible to the public and require an appointment to be seen. The Judy Varner Adoption and Education Center will provide the public with supervised direct access to these dogs' kennels, increasing the opportunity for these guys to find new homes more quickly.

Don't forget the critters:

It is very stressful for animals to be housed in areas where they are subjected to the smell, sound and sight of other animals who are their natural predators. So, it makes sense to provide new and separate accommodations for prey species like gerbils and rabbits who are currently housed too close to predatory species like cats and ferrets. Because we expect a 10% increase in these species in the coming years, mammals and exotics will have their own enclosed living space.

What's changing for humans:

- more efficient adoption process;
- electronic technology stations;
- digital messaging to promote responsible pet ownership and provide animal care and training tips;
- private counseling area for owner surrenders, distressed owners and Rainbow Bridge.

We will continue to provide all services and programs during our construction period, but you will see some spaces rearranged through May of 2020. Don't worry. We'll provide plenty of signage and information on our website so you can still find your way around.

As always, your help is the hope for these innovative changes! We are thrilled to share that we have received tremendous support from the community and have raised 99% of our $14.1 million goal. However, we need your help to push past the finish line! We only have about $170,000 left to raise and every dollar will truly make a difference. Naming opportunities are available at the $5,000.00 level and above. For more information please contact Kathy Roum, VP of Development at 402-905-3436. Or check our website at www.nehumanesociety.org.

NHS Flood Response

Record flooding destroyed houses, washed out roads and stranded people, pets, and livestock across Nebraska and Iowa this spring. NHS has been working non-stop to offer assistance to pet owners in flood ravaged areas.

Animal Control Officer
Misty Binau helps rescue a horse affected by the flooding in Waterloo.

Field

Our field officers worked to get the first wave of horses out of Gifford Farms and assisted in moving livestock to higher ground in Bellevue. A team went with first responders in boats and high-profile vehicles to areas still inaccessible to the public. They were instrumental in saving goats, chickens, cats, dogs, critters and horses in Waterloo, Valley, King Lake, Paradise Lakes and Green Acres. "Finding animals after the water had been up to the eaves in places was an amazing feeling. It gave us hope to continue!" said Kelli Brown, Director of Field Operations for NHS Animal control.

Red Cross Shelters

The shelter-side provided kenneling set ups at the Red Cross Shelters housing people in Elkhorn and Bellevue. NHS provided all supplies, including collars, leashes, food, crates, bedding, cleaning solutions as well as medical checks for all animals in those shelters. We know how important it was for evacuees to have the comfort of their pets in such trying times.

Housing pets at NHS

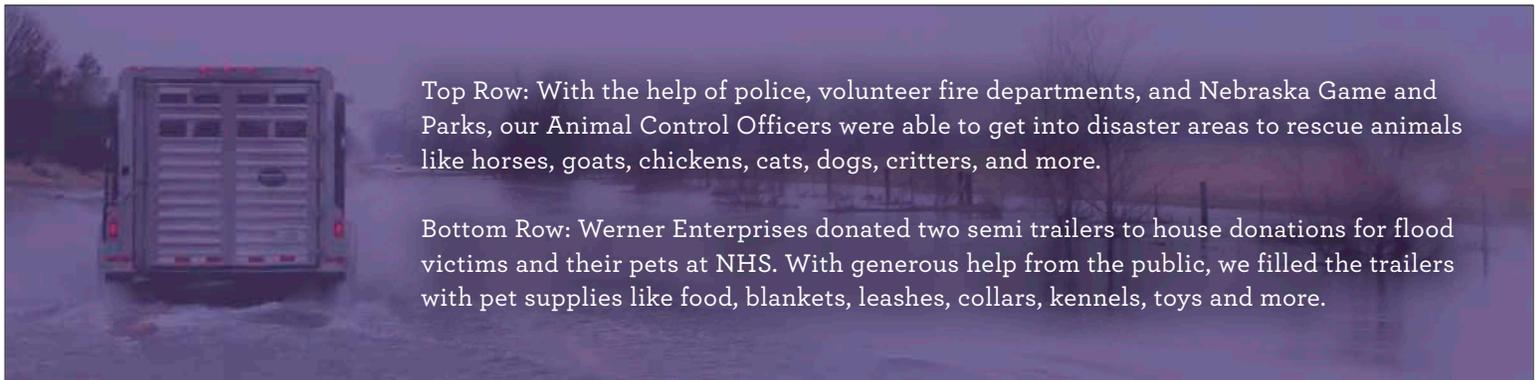

Some evacuees sheltered with friends, family or in hotels where pets can't be accommodated. As of this writing NHS is providing free care for more than 65 pets from our jurisdiction who were displaced by the flooding. In all we've taken in more than 125 pets who needed a temporary residence. We offered medical checks, food, housing and dog walking for all who sheltered with us.

Our Donation Drive

Werner semis were loaded up in two days with every pet supply imaginable thanks to a very generous public! People came with truckloads of supplies. And folks in need were bowled over by the donations. NHS volunteers cataloged, unloaded, arranged and gave out supplies for a busy two and half weeks. Every single one said the work was inspiring!

How you can help

Many people outside our immediate jurisdiction will need temporary housing for pets. If you can foster pets, or offer other services or supplies, we've set up a Facebook page to connect those in need with those who can help. Check out Helping Animals in Need -NE/IA 2019.

Top Row: With the help of police, volunteer fire departments, and Nebraska Game and Parks, our Animal Control Officers were able to get into disaster areas to rescue animals like horses, goats, chickens, cats, dogs, critters, and more.

Bottom Row: Werner Enterprises donated two semi trailers to house donations for flood victims and their pets at NHS. With generous help from the public, we filled the trailers with pet supplies like food, blankets, leashes, collars, kennels, toys and more.

NHS Vet Recognized as “Young Veterinarian of the Year”

Dr. Elizabeth Farrington of Omaha, Nebraska, was honored for her dedication to the profession with the “Outstanding Young Veterinarian” award for 2018, by the Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association (NVMA), at their annual convention in Kearney, January 24, 2019.

Dr. Farrington received her DVM from Iowa State University in 2011 and has worked at the Nebraska Humane Society in Omaha since graduation. She is also currently teaching an elective course in Shelter and Population Medicine for the Professional Program of Veterinary Medicine at University of Nebraska Lincoln.

“Watching her participate in the NVMA Power of 10 Leadership Academy, I knew she would hit the ground running!” commented Dina Michel, Executive Director of the NVMA .

Dr. Farrington has shown her commitment to the profession in many capacities, serving on the UNL Professional Program Admissions Committee, serving on the Prescription Drug Monitoring Program task force, and currently she is serving on the Nebraska Board of Veterinary Medicine and Surgery Board of Directors as a professional member.

“Elizabeth is very passionate about shelter medicine and has worked hard to improve the lives of the animals at the shelter and the human animal bond in the community. I am lucky to call her my co-worker and friend and I’m in awe at how much she has accomplished in her short time as a veterinarian thus far,” stated Dr. Elizabeth Marriott who nominated Dr. Farrington to receive this award. Everyone at NHS agrees! We expect to see many more animals benefit from Dr. Farrington’s talent and dedication.

Major Surgeries are “Business as Usual” for NHS Vets

Mildred, a sweet young tortoiseshell cat, came in to NHS limping and in pain. With X-rays, the veterinary team found this little gal had a damaged femoral head and neck on her right hind leg. The leg kept slipping out of the joint, causing her pain and restricted movement.

Because the head was malformed, they couldn’t just put the femur back in place. In previous years, amputation might have been the choice. But our veterinary staff continually works to offer animals here the best options. Instead of an amputation, our vets removed just the femoral head and neck, leaving the leg. This operation, known as a femoral head ostectomy or FHO, is now standard at NHS. The muscles of the leg initially hold the femur in place, and over time, scar tissue will form, providing cushioning and a “false joint”.

For Mildred, the surgery meant no more “bone grinding bone.” A few days after surgery she was up and moving slowly, but bright-eyed and not in constant pain. The med team offered stretching and physical therapy, and she quickly responded. Today, Mildred is in a new home, climbing on furniture and stalking dangling toys. She has a bright future thanks to our dedicated medical staff.

Diamonds in the Ruff

Dogs that need polish to shine

“I adopted Heidi from the Diamond Dog program at the Nebraska Humane society in the summer of 2017. When I first met her, she was very untrusting of new people and refused to approach me. The staff saw that I truly cared for her and wanted to establish a relationship with her. After an hour of patiently waiting to have her come up to me, the staff at NHS offered me the chance to take her home to see if she would warm up to me there. After a tedious day of working on building a relationship with her she finally warmed up to me and didn't leave my side. The next day I went into the humane society and adopted her.

Heidi has been the best dog I could ask for. She is full of life and has a unique personality. I am currently in the United States Army and I can say for certain this dog has my back no matter what. If there is one thing I can say about adopting a diamond dog it's this: The dogs do appreciate the time and effort you put into them. They will love you unconditionally when you do finally click, and you will love them even more. If you have the time and patience for a diamond dog, get one and you will get a best friend that you will never forget the rest of your life.” - Steven Determan

Not all dogs do well in the shelter environment – it's stressful being away from home and in a strange place, with a lot of other dogs and no one around that you know! And some dogs just need that one person who will help them shine in their new home.

NHS has a specialized program that offers these dogs more support, both at the shelter and during the adoption process.

What is the Molly Project?

- The Molly Project is a behavior modification program for dogs that may be shy, fearful, unruly, or have other behavioral concerns that need focused attention.
- Staff and volunteers provide specialized training and support behind the scenes to help these dogs overcome their behavioral challenges and find a home in which they can flourish.

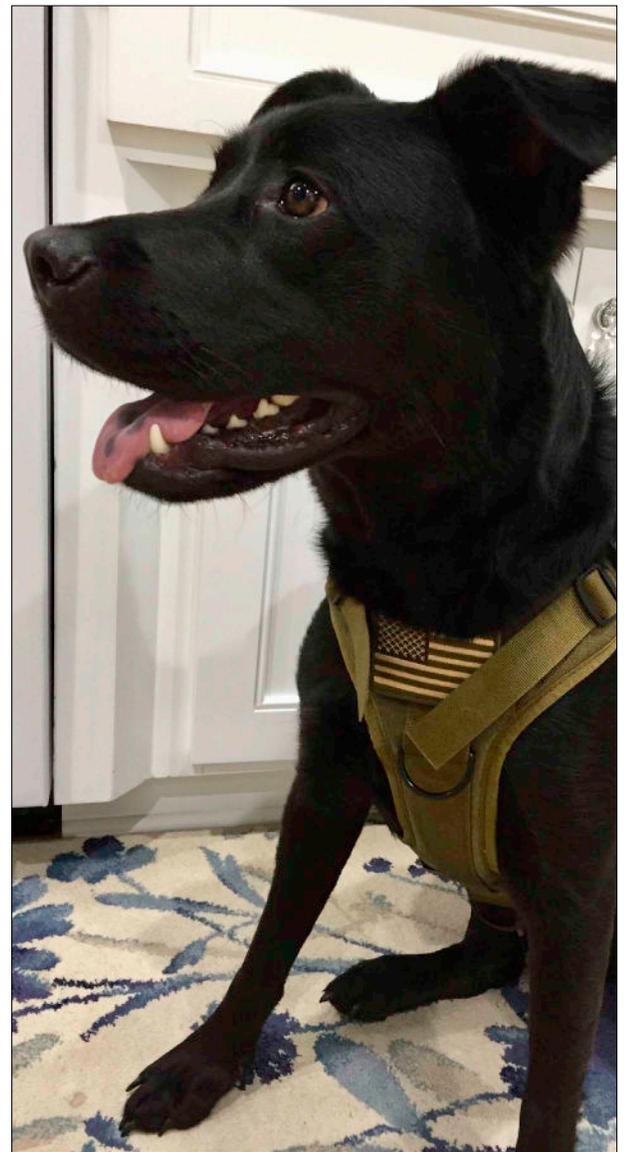

What is a Diamond Dog?

- The majority of the Molly Dogs become Diamond Dogs, which is an adoption program for dogs that need extra care to find the perfect home. These dogs are not in our general adoption kennels because that's too much stimulation.
- Instead adopters make an appointment and meet with our Behavior specialists one-on-one, to see if it's a good match.

Is a Diamond Dog right for you?

- Diamond Dogs need patient, committed owners dedicated to helping their new dog become his or her best self.
- Shy and fearful dogs do best in a quiet home with owners who help them feel safe and secure, without rushing them to do things beyond their level of comfort.
- Unruly dogs do best with active, experienced owners who will guide them to make good choices through the use of reward-based training.
- Due to their fearful or rambunctious nature, most Diamond Dogs will need homes without children or homes in which children do not visit often.

Diamond dogs are pictured on our website along with information regarding their temperaments. If you are interested in meeting one of these special adoption candidates, we do that on an appointment basis which is outlined in the dog's information. If you want to make a huge difference in a dog's life, a diamond dog might be a great candidate.

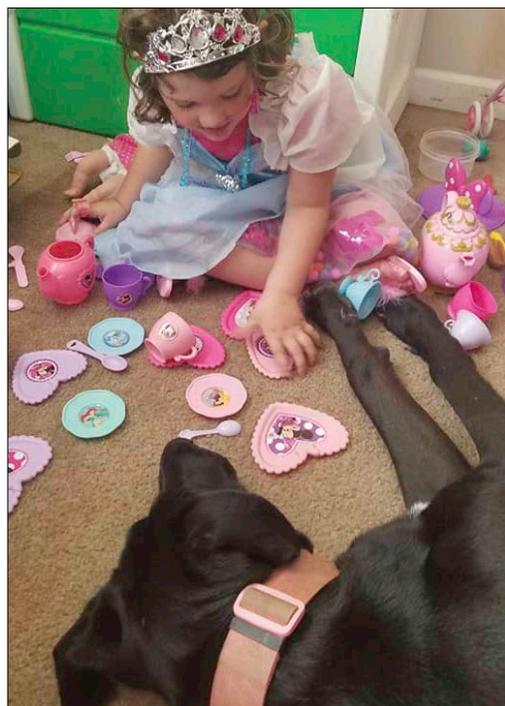

Tails of Success

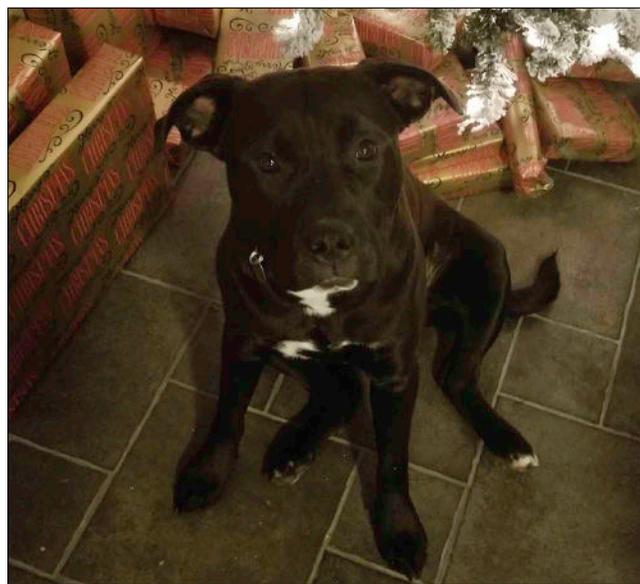

Maggie was adopted in September and she is just the sweetest kitty! She loves being petted, likes talking (meowing) to us all day, gets very excited when she hears the word “foods” and never gets tired of chasing the laser pointer around the house. We are so happy to have her, thank you for taking care of her! - Alex and Emma Buford

We adopted Cinnamon in May of 2018 and she is the purrfect addition to our family. She loves the kids and all the attention she gets from everyone. She's very social now that she's had six months to settle in and conquer her new territory. Instead of hiding when someone comes knocking, she runs to see who it is. I'm so grateful to NHS for our wonderful fur baby and I would recommend NHS to anyone looking for a pet. YOU ARE AWESOME! - Alisen Graham

We adopted Bella our Dane/Shepherd mix (AKA Camilla) a year ago from NHS. Our husky Vader needed a friend. Bella and Vader hit it off right away. Bella has been such a great addition to our family. The kids love her, and she is sweet and gentle. Our daughter loves to have tea parties with her and Bella doesn't mind at all. We are a lucky to have Bella she makes us smile. - The Palmer Family

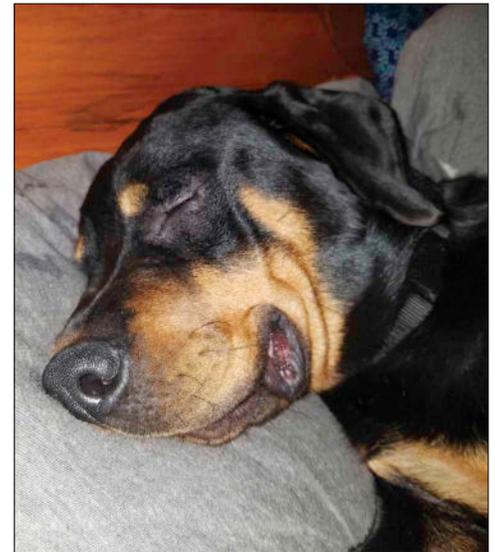

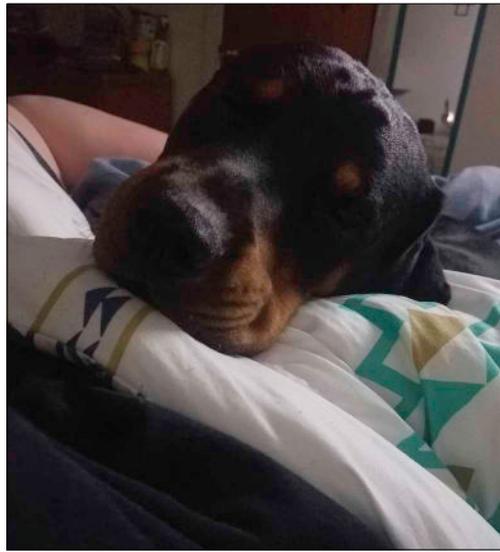

We are so happy to let you know Jazz is doing great! She fit right into our family. It was meant to be! - Dory Salcedo

This is Zedekiah (formerly known as Schwartz). This little fella was my father's day gift from my wife. When we came to adopt Zed, he was very skittish. In fact, I had to carry him to our car. Zed has now been a part of our family since June 16 2018. He is so full of energy. He loves going on walks, playing and most of all he loves car rides! He goes camping with us as well. We are so blessed to have Zed in our lives!!! Thank you, Nebraska Humane Society, for allowing us this opportunity. - Rodney Colson
